K. Eckland is an acute care nurse practitioner with extensive experience in cardiothoracic surgery - in and out of the operating room. Now she shares her findings from her latest investigation into the medical tourism industry, and services available in Bogota, Colombia. Albert Klein, PharmD is a clinical pharmacist specializing in in-patient pharmacology and pharmacotherapeutics. He currently lives and works in North Carolina. This is their second collaboration. Foreward by Dr. Peter K. Smith, MD is the Chief of Cardiothoracic Surgery at Duke University, which is consistently rated as one of the top ten programs nationwide for cardiac surgery.

This is a Surgical Tourism reference book. The authors give first hand ratings of hospitals and clinics in Bogota, Columbia (South America) based on previously established criteria. The first part of the book explains about Medical and Surgical Tourism. It even gives the reader more information on how to prepare for travel; planning accommodations; plus what may happen before and after the procedure. It also includes a basic guideline for getting around in Bogota. I love that one author explains what caused her to look into Surgical Tourism. Any persons looking for information on Surgical Tourism in Bogota Columbia should consider reading this book before hand. Disclosure: I was gifted this book because I showed an interest in the topic. The opinions expressed above are my own and should not be misconstrued as solicited by any author.

I have personally worked with Ms. Eckland and and admire her courage and honesty to bring information to the public. She is a remarkable woman with extensive medical knowledge. She is funny, carefree and a true inspiration to us all.

Very knowledgeable!
