Synopsis

Sometimes I feel silly. Sometimes I feel like eating pizza for breakfast. Sometimes I feel brave. Sometimes I feel like trying something new... The Feelings Book vibrantly illustrates the wide range of moods we all experience. Kids and adults will appreciate Todd Parr's quirky intelligence as he pays special attention to the ever-changing, sometimes nonsensical emotions that we all feel. "Sometimes I feel silly ... Sometimes I feel cranky ... Sometimes I feel like kissing a sea lion." There are so many different ways to feel, and author-illustrator Todd Parr believes people should not keep their feelings to themselves: "Share them with someone you love." Big round heads, stick-figure bodies, bold outlines, and vibrant colors mark the work of the creator of such lovably goofy books as The Okay Book and Zoo Do's and Don'ts. Straightforward feelings (lonely, scared, brave) are interspersed with less conventional, but equally valid feelings ("Sometimes I feel like standing on my head"), encouraging children to identify and label their constantly shifting emotions. Grownups can validate young readers as they read and chuckle together and discuss all the feelings they might experience in a given day. Parr's childlike illustrations are tremendously appealing to one and all.

PreSchool-Grade 2-Both of these small, simple, and sometimes very silly books feature brightly colored single-page cartoons of stick-figure-styled animals, people, and faces. In the first title, Parr shows that feelings are always changing. "Sometimes I feel like standing on my head" and "Sometimes I feel like celebrating my birthday even though it's not today" mix with "Sometimes I feel lonely" and "Sometimes I feel cranky." On the last page, the author encourages readers to share their feelings with "-someone you love." Overall, this is a nice addition to titles about the topic. In Underwear, Parr continues his series of books about "Do's and Don'ts." One double-page spread couples "Do Wash your underwear" with "Don't Use too much soap." Another advises, "Do Go shopping for underwear with a hippo" but "Don't Let her try it on," accompanied by an illustration of a hippo in ripped panties, size XL. This zany title is sure to send listeners into peals of laughter during storytime. Holly Belli, Bergen County Cooperative Library System, West Caldwell, NJ my 4-year old checked out a todd parr book from the library & fell in love with it, so i had to grab a few to start our own collection. the text is easy to remember and the pictures are very bright and colorful. they look like they were drawn by kids, and she really likes that. she already has this book memorized and loves to read it with me. highly recommend mr parr's books!

These books by Todd Parr are adorable, and my 9 month old gasps as he turns the pages and sees the bright colors and simply drawn characters. The messages are sweet and I can't wait to collect more of his books!

This is such a comprehensive little book on feelings for toddlers. My daughter loved it the moment she opened it.

Kids were not interested.

This is an excellent book for teaching young kids about feelings. The board book style makes it extra durable and perfect for young ones. Highly recommend.

Perfect for teaching children about how important your feelings are!

My foster child started reading this book right away. This is going to help him identify with his feelings and will be so beneficial.

Awful scribbles. Random writing. Total disappointment. Save yourself the money.
